

A white rectangular box, possibly made of styrofoam, is shown from a top-down perspective. The top surface is wrapped in a yellow material, likely tape or a protective film, and is divided into four horizontal sections by three visible creases or folds. The box is placed on a light-colored surface. On the front edge of the box, there is a small, partially obscured label on the left and a larger, white, rounded rectangular label on the right containing the text 'Nx.52'.
